125,000 OUT IN M. T. STRIKE

Garment Workers Walked Out Saturday Night.

BETTER CONDITIONS And Higher Wages, De- manded by the Union.

New York, Dec. 29.—When the shops which the 125,000 workers on men's and boys' garments are employed closed on Saturday the largest walkout in the clothing trades that has ever taken place in the United States was inaugurated.

In addition to the strike of these garment workers 30,000 waist makers and 20,000 white goods workers are preparing to strike. Most of the workers in these two trades are girls.

At a meeting this evening a committee of one thousand, composed of representatives of the various unions, met to discuss the situation. The committee decided to issue a statement to the effect that the strike was not a general one, but that the workers were demanding better conditions and higher wages.

One of the main demands of the strike is the abolition of tenement house work. The other demands of the strikers include an eight-hour day, the abolition of sub-contracting or inside contracting in the factories, abolition of foot-pedal sewing machines, and the abolition of the compressed air pressing process. The strikers want, among other things, a 20 per cent advance in wages, with a minimum of $16 a week for men and $10 for women.

In the strike of the workers on men's and boys' garments there will be a new departure in the history of the strike. In former strikes of clothing workers the strike leader was a clothing worker. In the New York District Council of the United Garment Workers of America will take charge of the strike, the real strike leader will be Abraham Cohen, editor of the Jewish Daily Forward.

There are 4,000 factories, and every department of the men's clothing industry. If the plan of the Strike Committee are successfully carried out all the shops where men's clothing of any kind is made will be tied up.

SAME OLD STORY

Taken for Drunk Dies in London Cells.

London, Dec. 29.—Robert Taggart, a middle-aged man, whose home was at Thamesford, a village four miles east of here, was arrested last evening, supposedly drunk, and died two days later in the London police cells. An inquest was ordered by Coroner Dr. MacLaren, and the jury viewed the body at the undertaker's morgue at noon today. An adjournment was made to hear the case at the Old Bailey next Thursday night.

A post-mortem examination by Dr. H. J. Kingmill said to have revealed the fact that the man really died of hemorrhage of the brain. According to his relatives he suffered from an accident on Christmas day, and, while he was some complaint, did not believe that he was seriously hurt. Saturday afternoon, after having attended London market, he was taken ill in Richmond street, and went to the room of the Grand Opera House. The police were notified that the man was lying in the place, and he was taken to the police station under arrest. The seriousness of his condition was not recognized until too late, and his death ensued shortly after the doctor's arrival.

Much complaint was made because of the fact that neither the police ambulance nor police patrol wagon was available, and it was found necessary to remove the man to the station in a motor truck which was pressed into service.

PERSIAN CRISIS.—The Persian reactionaries in the Province of Azerbaijan, led by the mullahs, have notified the government of their intention to declare their independence unless a Regent is appointed, the Bakhtiari members of the Cabinet removed, and Saad-ud-Dowleh, the former Prime Minister, who was exiled, put at the head of the government.

If the reactionaries attempt to carry out this threat the government will be unable to prevent them.

RUSSIAN MINISTER QUILTS.—St. Petersburg, Dec. 29.—The Emperor has accepted the resignation of M. Makaroff, as Minister of the Interior. The cause assigned for M. Makaroff's resignation is ill-health.

Billie Burke A Thought For the Year Ahead

By Billie Burke

THE FIRST WORD—When you begin to look backward instead of forward you are on the last lap of life.

hardening of the arteries as surely as a foot lock ahead. A friend of mine said to me the other day that Bernhardt had told her that if she accomplished all that she had planned she would be one hundred and thirty years old. I don't know if she told herself upon hearing this, but I think she would have been Bernhardt's secret of eternal youth.

The future must hold something for you, even up to your latest breath. There is no such thing as living in the past. You have a broken heart. But take hope in the knowledge that there is a future for every one, and that the greatest and most wonderful thing that is given to man is not money, but life. Live and love it. Don't waste the years by going to stretch out behind you, and above all, never look back. If you do you will be going like Lot's wife without power to march along with those who are coming away from the city of yesterday. Welcome to the future, and the future is yours. If you will be sorrow look forward to the morning, and you will be happy. If you will be pain, if it be joy, hope that it will stay a while with you. Only the future brings you each day, and the future is complete without both joy and sorrow. Always look forward to the future. Never expect to die. There is time enough to look back and balance the ledger when the constant change of this wonderful existence has become eternal calm.

JUST ONE LAST WORD—Instead of regretting yesterday do something today that will make you the hope of tomorrow.

MARY ELLEN'S WAY

Glimpsing Yourself

Here is a good thought for the New Year, is it not?

"If thou couldst in vision see thyself, as I see thee, I should be glad to tell thee of the things that thou art doing. But thou never wouldst believe it. The man thou art, content."

Did you ever try to see yourself—"the man God meant"? Try to see yourself as I see thee, and you will be glad to see the things that thou art doing. It is interesting work, is it not? Then, place over against it, the man you are. Is there a big contrast, an important contrast? What has brought about the difference?

The picture we make of ourselves as we imagine God meant us to be is largely the picture of ourselves with our ideal realized, is it not? To be sure, some of us may not have very worthy ideals. And if this is the case, we will find that there is a still finer man within us. For without doubt in each is the voice that says, "I am a better man than I am." For we are told that "There is a light within every man that can shine out into the world." So that if we feel that our ideal is not altogether worthy, that there is something in us better yet than that, then in making this picture of the man God meant us to be, let us make it according to the very best that we see within.

And though we are drawing this picture just perhaps to fill an idle moment, or as an experiment, it is a really big picture. It is the ideal the man God did mean us to be. And were we this man, would we not be supremely happy?

CYNTHIA GREY'S ANSWERS

Dear Miss Grey—I am 19 years old, weigh 160 pounds. Can you tell me how to reduce my weight, my bust and hips especially? I must have a boy for a call on me, yet seems to pay a good deal of attention to me. What is the proper way to me to ask him to call on me? I have a room in my house for the month of June—July.

A.—The best way to be taken notice of is to be a success. A few words and live an active life. Riding is an excellent means of reducing the hips. Do some walking. Scrubbing floors, sweeping and general housework will take the superfluous flesh off your body and make your muscles hard and firm. I do not recommend any outward applications to reduce flesh. They would do no real harm to it. But I think you will find that if you will put your mind to it, you can get a boy for a call on you if you are pleasant and unafraid with him. It is always nice to have a man to call on. Then you are sure he really wishes to continue your acquaintance, and is really interested in you. S. Make a short note

TRAGEDY OF SEA

Terrible Suffering of Wrecked Volmer's Crew.

Captain and One Sailor Only Were Saved.

London, Dec. 29.—The captain of the Danish steamer Volmer, which was wrecked off the Lizard during the storm of last week, and who was brought in here with one other survivor, said the first boat was smashed soon after it had been launched, and eight persons were drowned. He ordered a second boat launched. Seven entered it, leaving him on the bridge. The boat capsized, and all going to the bottom. The captain jumped from the bridge and swam to the boat, and with the assistance of the sailors succeeded in righting the boat, which he entered. The steamship soon sank, and there began a terrible ordeal. The first officer, who had lost his mind, tried to strangle the captain. They helped him to the shore, and he died during the night of exposure. The others died on Dec. 26, and their bodies were thrown overboard. They had very little food and were without water, and suffered terribly from thirst. They caught a little rain in their palms with which they tried to relieve their awful thirst.

Several steamers passed them, the captain says, but they were too exhausted to call them. One steamer they almost boarded deep in water and had abandoned hope when they were rescued.

DIED OF INJURIES

Indian Chief Who Blew Up Home Succumbs.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Dec. 29.—John Williams, the Tuscarora chief, who in a drunken rage, died at the Lockport City Hospital last night, having been injured by a dynamite explosion in his skull besides the injuries to his arm, which were untreated, by a surgeon for four hours following the tragedy.

Mr. Williams is a Huron Indian, born in the reservation in Canada. His maiden name was Maggie Douglas, and she is the daughter of a Huron chief. He was married to a white woman, the son, was held this morning, and the burial was made in the Indian cemetery on the reservation. The funeral was a Christian one. Williams having been brought up a Baptist.

RIVALS CONFERRED

French Presidential Can- didates Will Both Run.

Paris, Dec. 29.—Great interest is attached to meeting to-day between Premier Poincaré and M. Ribot, two of the candidates for the Presidency of the republic. They were closeted together for an hour at M. Ribot's house, but nothing concerning the conference was made public except the statement that the general situation both at home and abroad had been discussed.

M. Ribot, however, consented to say that his intentions with regard to his candidacy were unchanged as a result of the interview, and from this it is inferred that both Premier Poincaré and M. Ribot will continue as candidates for the Presidential office.

JUST LONELY.

A young man has just resigned a good position in New York city and gone to take one which is less remunerative in a smaller town, because he couldn't get acquainted with anybody and was intensely, just think of it! Bellowing tens of thousands every day in the most congested center of population on this continent, with four thousand boarding houses where his acquaintances would be welcomed and his money good, and yet he failed to find anybody in whom he could feel an interest. Poor fellow! Mamma! poor lonely boy!

RODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Was nobody quite nice enough for him, or did he expect other people to make all the advances?

A young man of professing affluence, graciously, politely, his education and salary sufficient for his needs, who does not find people glad to meet him and well worth knowing wherever he goes must be lacking in his diffidence or lack of enterprise. There is a tale of a ship, in distress for want of water and when the vessel attracted by its signal sailed past in sailing distance the skipper shouted: "Dip it up; you are in the mouth of the Amazon!" And so it may have been with this young man, thirsting for friends and with hosts of pleasant people all around him, perhaps it never occurred to him to dip.

Of course there is now and then a hermitic nature which fancies that it is a grudge and craves companionship when it really prefers to be alone. The man who makes friends wherever they go are those who really like people and to whom solitude is intolerable. Men get what they are capable of giving, and unless they go through life bagged with an air which tells the world that they are very exclusive, peculiar, distrustful and difficult to suit they will pick up friends enough along the road. The usual experience of a young man in a city is that he picks up too many friends without discrimination, and his baggage collection includes a list of people he is not happier for having known. However, fate moves in a mysterious way and may be leading the lone young man in question back to the old home town or to some other place which is his own heart's home, and where he will find that it was not friends he wanted in the plural, but some one singular, special and surprising being, born perhaps "the whole wide world apart," to whom he had been gravitating and never knew it. If this proves to be the case and if the young man, who may be in Rochester now for all we know, will so inform us or wire us, at night rates, wherever he has gone, and whenever he finds the object of his quest, some sympathetic minds may be relieved.—Detroit Free Press.

"Is an eloquent ever prudent?" It may be sometimes, but generally it is a mis-knew-said.—Baltimore American.

We also rejoice in the fact that this world seems better to us than it does to an angel.—Aldrich Globe.
